Ruling of Judge Eff...

Marriages

MONTEAL, July 20.—Mr. Alfred Frouin in superior court Friday annulled the marriage of Jeanne Dubois to Earl Sharpe because the declaration "I do" adopted by the lords of the privy council on Jan. 22, 1534, was not binding on non-Catholic clergymen would not require the conscience and the assent of the parties to the marriages.

In his judgment the rule of the lords between Catholics and Protestants established by permission of the pope in 1534 was not invalid under Canon law since the promulgation of the act accepted and sanctioned the canon and decrees of the council of Trent.

When the act of 1821 was passed "that the lords of the privy council

FOLLOWING UP THE "LEVY"

Speaking at Athabasca, Mr. Abernethy expressed his confidence that he would be able to get the money to retire the levy. He said that certificates he would issue to all adult residents of the province as Government-supplied meals for the summer months would be sold at a profit and recover them from the price spread.

These dividends would amount roughly to $100,000 a month, which would be paid out to each individual. Since the average gross income of the people of the province is some $15,000 a month, two-thirds of this would be paid out to the holders of the certificates, leaving the householder one-third of his present income, in addition to the dividends received by him and his dependents.

Out of which he would have to pay for all the goods he bought for re-sale, all the cost of operating his farm or business, and the cost of living for his family.

This money is not to be collected through an income "tax," which would be understandable, and would be paid out in the simplest and fairest way to go about it. The money is to be got by a "levy" imposed between the cost and the selling price of goods. That is to say, between what one pays for an article, or pays to produce the article, and the price at which he sells it.

Obviously the present price spread does not amount to any such sum as $100,000 a month.
The spread is in fact barely sufficient to keep business moving at all, and is a small, unpleasant and sluggish pain. In many cases there is no spread at all between the outgo and the income of a concern, and the business owner or operator is in a constant struggle to keep his business afloat.

In quite a number of cases the "spread" is the wrong way, and farming or other operations are being carried at a loss, and the use of capital or of the land is being lost.

Hence before the new levy could be collected from the price spread the spread would have to be widened to produce the necessary amount.
The $100,000 would have to be added to present selling prices before it could be extracted from them. In other words, the price of goods would have to be marked up, which is precisely what Mr. Abernethy proposes in his Manual.

Roughly, that is to say, the price of goods would have to be marked up, which is precisely what Mr. Abernethy proposes in his Manual.

From bread to motor cars, and from faint to faint, everything would have to be up, by a mark-up of 25 per cent, and from required two-thirds advance in the aggregate of selling prices.

And with no resultant benefit from the advance to those engaged in production or distribution. The whole of the advance would be absorbed by the Government to retire the credit certificates. In point of fact everyone would be worse off, whether wage-earner or "on his own."

Worse off by the cost of the very extensive organization that would have to be maintained to issue the certificates and collect the money to retire them.

Everyone, that is, except the fortunate individuals who got jobs in the dozens of credit hubs that would have to be established and in the army of directors, supervisors and inspectors who would have to be employed in addition and outside to keep everybody in step and the complicated machinery operating.

Doubling or tripling of the cost of paying the Government of the Government employees. Which cost, it is to be noted, would have to be paid taxation over and above the "levy" made to pay off the credit certificates.

And that, so far as is to ordinary business judgment, seems to be the net result of the ingenious scheme, supposing it ever got past the initial difficulties cited by Major Douglas and was really set in operation.

THE FINE ITALIAN HAND OF THE MINISTER OF

Right up to the last minute against but from non-political organizations.

Which is Mr. Headley's tactical way of admitting that divers and sundry persons tried to stop the Government from holding an election in the middle of the harvest season. No hint from the Minister of the ground being the ground for protest. Instead, he gently conveys the suggestion that the political and non-political parties unnamed were not at all eager for an early election while the Ministers were simply consumed with anxiety to get to the country with the least possible loss of time.

EDUCATION

There never showed to better advantage than in sketching this intriguing picture of the Government straining at the leash while opponents and enclingers tried to hold it back from railing to the polls. Seeing that the election should have been held a year ago, and was stood off until the legislature died because the Ministers knew they couldn't win, it took a gifted hand as well as a bold imagination to produce a masterpiece like that. There isn't another member of the cabinet who could have done it and kept a straight face. This Government, of all there have been in Canada, anxious for an election?

It is plain who is going to supply the humor of this campaign.

WHAT OF THE REACTION?

Thirty leaders of the strike at Valcarlos, where 1,800 men stopped work because they think they should get more than twenty cents a day for building a new Government arsenal, were kidnapped by the Police in the city of Ottawa, loaded into trucks, taken outside the camp, and "abandoned"—presumably on a public highway.

No doubt that was the quick and easy way to get them out of the camp. Perhaps it was also the quickest and easiest way to intimidate the rest of the men and drive them back to work.

But one must wonder, did the man responsible for these "orders" imagine that kind of treatment would convince the campmen that their demand for higher pay was unreasonable and impracticable? Or that the strike against the country would be impressed with the fairness of the proceedings? Or that those who were taken to jail and then released would return to work?

Is that the way to "end unemployment," alay discontent, discourage violence, and "make Canada a land to live in?"

Forty Years Ago

From the Files of The Edmonton Bulletin

J. Linham returned Monday from Beaver Lake, where he has been on a cattle buying trip. He has been in the business of buying cattle in the Edmonton district, which will be taken by trail. This will be a great relief to the cattle raisers, who have been glutted this season. The reason cattle are not in demand here by the great buyers was not because we had too much of them, but because we had not enough of the right kind to make it worth while for these buyers to come after them and pick them up.

A number of the members of the cabinet declare publicly that they will vote against remedial legislation and yet they remain members of the government, which has definitely promised it, their actions directly giving the lie to their words. Other members declare their loyalty to the government, but then advertise their disloyalty in the righteousness of their own cause by again taking office. A clearer statement of public nerve was made than the recent so-called crisis at Ottawa.

Peochns That Live

TO THE ROSE

Go, happy rose, and interpose Amongst those flowers, bind my love.

Let her, too, she must not be Longer, the man who has loved her
That she not off has lettered me.

Stay, if she's faithful, I have hands Of pearl and gold, to bind her hands;

Let her, too, she must not be
Longer, the man who has loved her
That she not off has lettered me.

I have many a rose of old,
For to take, though not to kill.

Take thou my blessing thus, and go And tell her this—but do not so!

Let a lightning from her eye,
And burn thee up, as well as I.

The Inferiority Complex

By DOCTOR FRANK MCCOY

Many people are undoubtedly troubled by inferiority complex. If we examine the term
"inferiority" we find it self-explanatory, referring to the fact that the individual feels inferior to others around him, or to the fact that he feels he lacks "what it takes" to face a certain situation. However, a feeling of inferiority may exist in many degrees and intensities. A mild inferiority is probably a good thing; a severe complex of this nature may cripple the individual to the extent that he avoids work, the society of others, or any activity in life which has a useful side.

We are none of us born with an inferiority complex. We learn it. The individual who feels inferior is making a struggle to compensate for that inferiority or to make good. He may be ashamed to admit the fact that he has fallen down, and at least in the beginning, will try his best to hide that feeling from the world. Later, he may conceal his distrust, but in the beginning, he hides it from his fellows. If you feel inferior in any one direction, I venture to say that the hardest thing in the world for you to do is to do that particular shortcoming in which you feel you lack.

You probably learned early in life that you are not as good looking as some else, nor as smart, nor as capable. As soon as you became aware of this feeling you were learning something about yourself. The first against an inferiority complex is largely an inward battle.
It is a fight which rages back and forth on the stage of your mind.

It may be stated as a psychological law that WE ARE BORN WITH THE NEED TO THINK WELL OF OURSELVES. Despite this, the individual is harassed by a feeling of inferiority is interfering with this fundamental need. He forgets that he is a human being, that he has learned to do what he has to do. He forgets that when he averages up his capabilities and compares them with those of the ordinary person that he is just as good as the ordinary person.
A normal amount of self-esteem, he does not think well of himself, apologizes, and is filled with a sense of inferiority. He is trying to do something that simply will not work; he is trying to conform to the ideal of the world, and he is the idea that he can't succeed. If our psychological wheels are to run smoothly, they must be well-oiled with the feeling that we think well of ourselves. Talking to yourself, and putting it and put in the place, the clogging grit of doubt and the wheels will stick and you will not get the full power from the motor of your own mind.

The greatest mistake made by these people who are cramped and hindered by a feeling of inferiority is that they believe because they have been hindered by this complex, they believe that they must go on feeling inferior. They put themselves in the incurable class. Nothing could be further from the truth. The inferiority complex can be completely overcome and modern psychology is lending a helping hand to all of those who are suffering from this inferiority chains of inferiority. There is absolutely no reason for you to believe that just because you have an inferiority complex, you must go on having it.

An inferiority feeling has been built up by the way you feel about yourself. Change the feeling and you change the complex. You have a feeling of confidence. You have a feeling of distrust because past experiences have made you form the habit of doubting yourself. This habit can be changed.

SIDE GLANCES — By George Clark

Monday's text selected by Rev. G. D. Wilson, St. Paul's Anglican Church, Provost.

Many people are undoubtedly troubled by
inferiority complex. If we examine the term
"inferiority" we find it self-explanatory, referring to the fact that the individual feels inferior
to others around him, or to the fact that he feels he lacks "what it takes" to face a certain
situation. However, a feeling of inferiority may exist in many degrees and intensities. A mild inferiority
is probably a good thing; a severe complex of this nature
may cripple the individual to the extent that he
avoids work, the society of others, or any activity in life which has a useful side.

CAPITOL HAS NEW "G" MAN THRILL FILM

Federal Police Featured in "Public Hero
No. 1"

Modern as today's newspaper headlines, and thrilling as their graphic accounts of the war of the government on organized crime, is "Public Hero Number 1," amazing thriller of the work of the secret service, which opens an engagement of three days at the Capitol theatre today.

Tracing the pursuit of a notorious public enemy, the work of the operative who turns him up to justice, and the amazing ramifications of the Federal agencies pitted against the underworld, the story tells, in details actually taken from records, cases and newspapers, the ever more apparent fact that crime does not pay.

Lionel Barrymore plays the principal character role in which he demonstrates an amazing facility for comedy along with drama as the brilliant Dr. Glass, physician-in-ordinary to the cohorts of the Federal men.

Chester Morris gives what is probably the finest performance of his career as the adventurous Jeff Crane, who exposes himself to all sorts of dangers in getting out of perilous close quarters.

Also outstanding is the gangster portrayal of Joseph Calleia, who created such a personal hit in the New York stage play "Smart Money," and who now gives every evidence of being in great demand for picture roles.

OTHERS WHO STAND OUT

The romantic scale of the story is deftly handled by the attractive Jean Arthur and other clever players who are controlled by Paul Kelly as the head of the secret service and Lewis Stone as the prison warden.

The sensational prison break, the abortive stampede of a thousand convicts, the breath-taking running battle, in fact, all of the gangster and their pursuers, the raid on the prison hide-out, are among dramatic highlights of the swiftly-moving story of the heroism of the Federal men.

Los Roberts the Lakewood Inn Maestro, who at the end of the season of the report will move into a popular downtown hotel, is already appearing up and down the coast to the fall, adding new numbers to his list each time he plays at the Inn.

Madame "la belle étoile" and the crowds keep him on those two select, time longer than anything else.

man commission, recently tabled in the House of Commons, would be implemented.

The housing bill of the Bennett government Mr. Stevens believed, appeared to be designed to relieve mortgage and loan companies rather than assist the homeless to secure housing.

The issue in the coming dominion election was not between W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, and Prime Minister R. B. Bennett. Mr. Stevens declared that the "only question between them is whether the two old parties will be the big interests through their main support," he continued. "You may not be assured it will be the party which appears to have the best chance of winning."

The real issue was "between the people and a handful of men who dominate and dictate Canada's affairs," was Canada to recover democratic means of its affairs, or "shall we sink still lower under the dominating influence of concentrated wealth and power?"

As opposed to further concentration of power and wealth, Mr. Stevens maintained that the Reconstruction party stood for decentralization of power and wealth, restoration and reconstruction of a decentralized power, and advocated decentralization of power and wealth. "So that the Reconstruction party may have a larger share in the power of the country."

LOWER INTEREST RATES

This might be achieved by lower interest rates, elimination of sweatshops, fair and equitable wages and hours of labor, and stabilized prices to the farmer.

The free rights of the individual must be restored, so that the "weight of organized capital shall not, by unfair methods, crush the competitor who by his initiative and individual efforts seeks to serve his fellowmen and secure for himself a comfortable living."

And, asserted the Reconstruction leader, youth must have its opportunity. Not only must youth be permitted to earn a living. This was basic. But youth must be permitted to "realize the legitimate ambitions which pulsate in the heart of all young Canadians, and for which our great country owes unlimited scope."

There must be opportunity for all who would work on the farm, in the forest, in the mine, or in other branches of commercial life.

ought to be DEPORTED

"I am not interested in the slacker—this fellow who would be the agitator, the seditionist, the disturber of the peace—there is no room for him in Canada," Mr. Stevens declared with emphasis. "As now the time has come when they ought to be deported without delay."

"There is no place in Canada for destructive revolution," he continued. "We are building a new Canada. Canada is still the best country in the world to live in. There are many, too many, who through the greed of a few are being driven from their living and take their rightful place as citizens. We wish to restore these things. It is the duty of government to safeguard our people."

The economic and social life of Canada must be reconstructed so that the "majority of the people may be enjoyed by all and not by a few," he said. "The Reconstruction party means new life, new energy and new vitality."

HUEY REEFES ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, July 20—Fresh from another legislative triumph in Louisiana, Senator Huey P. Roosevelt returned to the United States senate Friday following defiance at the Roosevelt administration for cutting off public works administration funds from his state.

Packed galleries heard long pro-Roosevelt column, and you could not put it there, you could not.

"I did it because she called me Huey," East quoted Mrs. Roosevelt as saying.

He asserted the state would file suit in the supreme court—and Roosevelt said he would not without the state for the clubhouse—boards and other agencies had been "without constitutional authority."

MASKED MOB HANGS NEGRO

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. July 20—A Negro accused of a knife attack on a white woman, was snatched from his deputies near here Friday and lynched by a mob of masked white men.

The suspect, booked as Rubin King, 30, was taken to a roadhouse within sight of the home of Martin Luther King, Jr., 30-year-old mother of three children, who had identified him as her assailant.

Arrested Friday morning amid gunfire, Stacy was being taken to Broward county officers to the Dade (Miami) jail, 25 miles from here. It was there that he could be brought to trial.

"There was about 100 of them," said Deputy Sheriff Virgil Wright, "and they ran our car off the road. After overpowering us, they took him to the Negro up the road and hanged him. He filled full of bullets. I guess they shot him both before and after they hanged him."

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

—By William Ferguson

THE most plausible reason for the numerous stones carried in the penguin's stomach is that, since he eats enormous amounts of fish, he needs assistance in grinding and digesting his meals. Seals, likewise, carry loads of stones in their stomachs. Even our domestic hen eats stones to aid her digestion.

WHEAT MARKET PURSUES EVEN TENOR OF WAY

WINNIPEG, July 20.—While outside markets advanced buoyantly on North American report, wheat prices pursued the even tenor of their way on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Values closed in line with yesterday's, July at 80½ and August 80½.

It was reported spreading through the United States Government and the Dominion that research laboratory at Winnipeg continued to find that wheat was prevalent in southern Manitoba and eastern Saskatchewan. As for wheat at Yorkton, Manitoba enthusiasm looked, however, as if destined to stimulate production of breeding of foreign demand for wheat.

LOOKING INTO THE HEART OF A NEWSPAPER

WHAT is it you look for in your newspaper—the paper that comes into your home to be read by every member of the family? Do you like frankness of expression or do you prefer the namby pamby line that is nought but glittering generalities, albeit pleasant to the ear but frothy and unstable?

DO YOU like a newspaper that you can come to and tell your troubles and be received with sympathy and understanding—or do you like the newspaper that stands on a palladium of egoism and fails to reflect the heart that beats in unison with every public problem that concerns you and yours?

THERE are distinctive brands of newspapers the world over but the real reader seeks the kind that becomes a part and parcel of one's every day life and mirrors the news of city, town and neighborhood in an unbiased manner and gives food for reflection as well as entertainment and education.

WHEN you pick up the Bulletin your eye is first attracted to its newsy make-up and careful selection and assortment of news. Your attention is drawn to its unusual features that reflect home life and political aspirations. Anything that's new in the economic world will be found in
